Jaime Careathers focuses his practice on defending companies, insurers, businesses, and property owners facing asbestos and other toxic tort and hazardous substance claims.

Jaime is an experienced litigator, and has helped to devise and implement the defense strategy for several high-profile clients and cases. In addition to his work with toxic torts, he has also represented and advised clients in matters including finance, contracts, automotive product liability, real estate, and medical malpractice.

Jaime is a dedicated advocate and volunteer for others in need, providing pro bono counsel, guidance, and a helping hand whenever possible. He is also a passionate animal lover and has volunteered for shelters and reserves in the United States and abroad.
